

Cut out these and place them in a visible place to remind you to work through these four questions before adopting a new app, social media platform or other new technology.

Four Questions to Evaluate Technology in light of God's intended purposes for humans to live God honoring, purpose filled, and flourishing lives.

1. What is the thing(s) I'll be able to do because of this technology? What value will it add to my life?
2. What will I no longer be required to do because of this technology? What will it save me from?

But . . .

3. What will this technology require me to no longer do or to do significantly less of?
4. What will this new technology require of me in terms of time, attention, relationships and money?

Four Questions to Evaluate Technology in light of God's intended purposes for humans to live God honoring, purpose filled, and flourishing lives.

1. What is the thing(s) I'll be able to do because of this technology? What value will it add to my life?
2. What will I no longer be required to do because of this technology? What will it save me from?

But . . .

3. What will this technology require me to no longer do or to do significantly less of?
4. What will this new technology require of me in terms of time, attention, relationships and money?

Four Questions to Evaluate Technology in light of God's intended purposes for humans to live God honoring, purpose filled, and flourishing lives.

1. What is the thing(s) I'll be able to do because of this technology? What value will it add to my life?
2. What will I no longer be required to do because of this technology? What will it save me from?

But . . .

3. What will this technology require me to no longer do or to do significantly less of?
4. What will this new technology require of me in terms of time, attention, relationships and money?